Low Housing Supply

Canada's Construction Productivity Hits 30-Year Low

Ontario's chronic underbuilding is driving up home prices and rents as demand vastly outpaces supply. Rising regulatory barriers, labour shortages, and material costs = unlikely the federal housing targets will be met.

Canada falling short by 2.5 million homes.

Increasing Construction Costs

2020 and 2022, the cost of construction materials like lumber, steel, and concrete increased by 20-40%. It directly influences condo prices in Toronto and is expected to further increase from today's level.

➔ Municipal Fees on a high-rise unit increased by $32,000 in just 2 years.

Toronto's Development Charges have also skyrocketed up 405% in the last decade, jumping from $10,429 per unit in 2014 to $52,676 in 2024.

Fundamental: GTA Population Forecast to Grow

Toronto led population growth in Canada and the U.S. in 2023, adding 125,756 residents in Toronto, and 221,588 in the GTA.*

+ Over the past decade, an average of 95,000 immigrants have settled in Toronto annually, representing 32% of Canada's total.

Fundamental: Condos are More Affordable Housing Ownership Option

Single-family homes in Ontario have grown significantly in size and price, making them increasingly out of reach for many buyers.

The median size of single-detached houses increased from 1,317 sq. ft. in the 1970s to 2,383 sq. ft. in the 2020s.

Technical: Allure Occupancy Set During Significant Condo Shortage

GTA condo completions are set to a sharp decline by ~79% in 2029, resulting in increased demand, sales prices, and rent growth.

*Average completion supply between 2010-2025: 17,801 units

“The Oxford report estimates that Canada must build 4.2 million new homes between 2024 and 2035 to restore balance in the housing markets. This equates to constructing 420,000 homes annually over the next decade — nearly 70 per cent more than the average construction output in recent years.” - Financial Post
